

I have never been one of those people who write in to complain about programming, however, I saw something just moments ago that have left me sickened. Feb. 25th episode of NYPD Blue had a full-on frontal and rear close-up, and panned up and down, views of Charlotte Ross's character on the show. Not only was that enough, but a small child was there getting the full frontal view.....And people had problems with the Victoria's Secret show that had silhouettes?